Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Poetic Lecture on Womanhood I m not a Pollock, Byron, Pope, nor Steele, Nor have I traveled o er the world a deal; Nor many grave and pond rous books have read About the living or the ancient dead; Nor do I much of good or evil know, Save what I learn while through the world I go. But, then, if this or that, or that or this I ve not yet learned, it may not be amiss T simply state t my indulgent hearers In these, my first Poetic Bearers, That I ve many things and grave truths to tell, Whether bout men, or devils, heaven or hell, Which neither Pollock, Byron, Pope, nor Young, Nor any other Poet ever sung. But what these things are, and what these truths, I ll not tell to Sires, Matrons, Maids, nor Youths Faster than my rhymes they hear and ponder, Lest I cloy their taste and sate their wonder, And thus my rhymes, quite stale, aside be laid, My hearers vexed and bored, and I not...
