The distribution of statures among men of a given weight is given by reading down in the vertical columns. It will be observed that the entries become larger in the middle of the table; this is because men of medium stature and medium weight are much commoner than those of extreme stature or those of extreme weight. Thus, in Table I the largest entry is 18,930, which means that that number of men out of 868,445 had a stature about 67 inches and 135-139. inclusive, pounds. This combination was then the commonest one among the early recruits into the United States Army. Table I answers the question, What proportions of men of a given stature, such as 69 inches, fall into each of the different classes of weight? These proportions per 1,000 are obtained by reading along the horizontal lines. Table I answers the question, What proportions of men of different classes of weight, as for instance 145-149 pounds, fall into each of the different classes of stature? The answer is given again by reading along the horizontal lines. It must be remembered in applying these tables that the frequencies in the extreme classes fail to give a good picture of the distribution of weights and statures in that part of the population. This is because there was a selection against men of under 63 inches, and this selection was especially marked in the case of men under...
