In twenty-five years the fifteen-year-old boy who enlisted in 1864 will be a gray-haired man, bent over with the weight of sixty-seven years. In thirty years he will have passed the allotted years of the life of man. In twenty-five years a meeting of one Grand Army Post will be held once in three months, or once a year, at some central place in each State, and a few enfeebled men will meet to consult for the good of an order of which nothing will remain but a recollection of its glories. Those old men will have come down from past generations. In thirty years it will, indeed, be a grand and glorious sight, at a National Encampment, to see two or three old men from each State meet together to hear read only the lists of those who have been mustered out within one year. Let it be remembered that the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic can never be recruited. No one can enter this order who has not been a soldier of the Union. No one else ought ever to be allowed to enter it. If others do, the grandeur of the Grand Army is...
