Excerpt: . . . 11 moves from campus to campus, with many institutions participating, allowing a needed program to be offered on a periodic basis in sparsely populated areas with-out the typical inefficiencies associated with providing expensive programs in rural communities. Focusing resources on core academic priorities A few states, such as Ohio and Virginia, have instituted productivity reviews that identify undersubscribed majors at all public institutions and reallocate public funds away from those majors if they fall below a designated threshold. The Illinois Prior-ities Quality and Productivity initiative in the mid-1990s pursued this goal by pro-viding a common set of data about individual program performance to institutions. After providing the data, the Illinois Board of Higher Education left the decision about which programs to eliminate up to the institutions so long as they improved institutional performance within established guidelines. Streamlining student transitions to reduce rework and attrition This includes offering accelerated learning options (e. g. , Advanced Placement International Baccalaureate, dual concurrent enrollment, Early College High Schools) and early intervention programs to boost student preparation. In Cali-fornia, the 11th grade standards test serves as a barometer of readiness for courses in the California State University system, giving students early warning about their college preparation. Washingtons Running Start program reaches about 10 percent of high school juniors and seniors in the state. Running Start students who transfer their credits to four-year institutions complete Bachelors degrees with an average of 33 fewer...
